

WHO WE ARE

PPMI is a dynamic, privately-owned institute specialising in public policy consulting and advice on areas including employment, education, communication, and R&I. Based in Vilnius, Lithuania, we are a recognised provider of evaluation and research services to EU public sector organisations including the European Commission and its external agencies. We're proud to work on a daily basis with a large and growing network of international partners.

WHO WE'RE LOOKING FOR

We're seeking an intern to join one of our project teams. To apply, you should be enrolled in a Bachelor's degree program (3rd or 4th year student) in social sciences and have:

- A good command of written and spoken English, matched with good communication skills
- Interest in public policy and public sector interventions
- Attention to detail, problem-solving skills and the ability to apply them creatively
- Willingness to learn and grow, with a pro-active attitude

WHAT TO EXPECT

You'll have the opportunity to get involved in one of PPMI's projects. This internship will include:

- Delivering high-quality analytical texts and other research outputs on time
- Sharing knowledge and providing support to team members
- Mobilising and overseeing external experts from the PPMI network and beyond
- Helping to build PPMI's success

WHY INTERN AT PPMI?

PPMI encourages interns to make the most of their placement, and helps prepare them for their future career. We offer:

- The opportunity to work with and learn from renowned experts
- Support from senior colleagues/mentors
- The opportunity to develop your professional network
- Tripartite contract (if required by the university)
- Flexible working hours, compatible with lectures
- Ergonomic office space in the city centre with all necessary technological resources
- A friendly workplace with fresh juice every Monday morning!

We value professionalism, collaboration, curiosity and a happy work environment. If these resonate with you, contact us now!

OUR FORMER INTERNS: WHY INTERNSHIP AT PPMI?

Justina Vaikutytė-Paškauskė (Senior Researcher)

PPMI offered an opportunity to explore policy 'in the making'. As an intern I got challenging tasks that required to employ all the skills I gained at the university as well as learn plenty of new things very quickly. PPMI is an organisation that turns learning into a mutual process - you bring your own skills to the company, and it gives you a ton of new ones in return.

Gabrielius Sužiedėlis (Junior Researcher)

Internship at PPMI provided me with a great chance to put my theoretical knowledge into practice and to contribute to problem solving at national, European and even global level. Moreover, it offered me great career opportunities – that is why I chose to stay here :)

Vaida Gineikytė (Researcher)

An internship environment where you really do and learn things.

Gerda Burneikaitė (Junior Researcher)

Internship at PPMI gave me an opportunity to learn many new things, which is perfect when you are not certain what topics interest you most. Getting familiar with EU policies in areas such as employment, education, doing interviews, carrying out a survey allowed me to use and improve skills I gained at university by applying them in practice. Most importantly, interning at PPMI made me feel that I am putting my time to good use and continuously improving.

Modestas Stukas (Junior Researcher)

An internship at PPMI was the best opportunity for me to develop my study-related knowledge and skills further. Challenging tasks and friendly office just created a perfect conditions for me to grow further. Oh, and free coffee and sweets are included too ☺
